—This shows how little a woman understands a man. They were talking about the burglary committed over on Sixth street recently, and the husband bravely suggested: "May, dear, in case any burglar breaks in you will know where to find me!" "Yes" she said' "I would look under there for you the first thing"

—THE TELEGRAPH learns from some oologist, that there are "egactly" four eggs of the great 'auk now in this country, and they are valued at $500 each. It seems odd to think of a bird becoming extinct, but no one has seen a Labrador duck since 1856. There are but five mounted specimens in existence, and none of the eggs are in extant. Kirtland's warbler is another bird that is rare.

—Childrens' Day, which was properly observed on Sabbath by several of our churches, is a custom, we may say, of recent years, not over a dozen being started, we believe in Brooklyn, N. Y. It was well celebrated here in Dixon, Sunday, as may seen by the accounts we gave in this paper of the ceremonies. There were an abundance of beautiful flowers, and bright and happy little children. It is asked: How did the day originate? and we may reply by sending our readers to the Bible, and especially by calling attention to Matthew, 18th: "At the same time came the disciples unto Jesus, saying, Who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven. And Jesus called a little child unto him, and set him in the midst of them," etc. The chapter is nearly all illustrative of Christ's love of little children.

Druggist, Dixon, Ill.

There is no real estate boom here in a speculative sense. No such boom as has been experienced at Kansas City, Omaha or Los Angeles where people invested their money never to see it again. But the real estate market here is steady and strong and the best lots near the business part of the city are being taken for building purposes to accommodate the increasing population. They will never be bought cheaper because Dixon is making a steady and sure growth and is one of the most beautiful cities in the west. If you want a home here, there is no use in waiting for lower prices.

I have on my list now some very choice building lots. Am also furnishing the very best Fire Insurance as low as can be secured in the city. Come and see me.

SEALING STOPPED.

Uncle Sam and John Bull Sign a Modus Vivendi.

THE FUR BEARERS SAFE UNTIL MAY

All Poachers To Be the Legitimate Meat of Either American or British Naval Vessels—Conclusion of the First Stage of the Negotiations—Summary of the Correspondence Between the Governments—Some Points in Which Lord Salisbury Met Something Very Rigid in the Way of Backbone.

WASHINGTON CITY, June 16.—The first agreement between Great Britain and the United States relating to the Behring sea controversy was signed yesterday, and the president immediately issued a proclamation declaring it in force from this date. Secretary Foster has also telegraphed Capt. Hooper, commanding the steamer Corwin at San Francisco, to proceed with all possible dispatch to the Pribylov islands with copies of the president's proclamation for distribution to interested parties, commanders of all United States and British war or revenue vessels, and then proceed to enforce the provisions of the proclamation. The agreement is a modus vivendi, which stops sealing in the waters of Behring sea until next May, and was carried to completion with a speed unprecedented in the history of the state department, nearly all the negotiations being carried on by cable.

Summary of the Modus Vivendi.

The modus vivendi provides that the United States and Great Britain each will prohibit the killing of seals in Behring sea east of the line of Russian domain until next May; that vessels flying either flag or manned by citizens or subjects of either government, caught violating this agreement shall be subject to seizure by the naval vessels of either government, to be handed over as soon as practicable to the proper jurisdiction; and that in order "to facilitate such proper inquiries as her majesty's government may desire to make with a view to the presentation of the case of that government before arbitrators, and in expectation that an agreement for arbitration may be arrived at, it is agreed that suitable persons designated by Great Britain will be permitted at any time, upon application, to visit or remain upon the seal islands during the present sealing season for that purpose." The right of the United States to kill 7,500 seals is one of the conditions of agreement.

The Preliminary Negotiations.

The correspondence leading up to this agreement is voluminous and at several points difficulties arose which jeopardized the success of the negotiations, but they were all smoothed over, principally by concessions made by Lord Salisbury, who seems to have stumbled into several pits of obstruction. The first proposition came from England and included the whole of Behring sea in the prohibition, provided for a British consul on the islands and for the consent of Russia. The president objected to all three of these; the first because the United States had no jurisdiction in Behring sea west of the Russian line, and that part of the sea had no place in the arbitration of the question.

A Consul Out of the Question.

A consul on the islands was utterly impossible because the United States laws forbade any one to live on the islands unless authorized by the treasury. The consent of Russia was objected to because it would delay matters until it was too late and because the controversy is limited to that part of the Sea over which Russia has no control. The proposition was declared to present an insuperable difficulty, and Lord Salisbury was practically told that insistence thereupon would stop the whole business. It was impossible to make this agreement broader than the whole subject of contention. The president therefore hoped that upon reconsideration Lord Salisbury would waive his suggestions.

SALISBURY WAIVES HIS POINT

And Makes Another Proposition That Is Tectotally Rejected.

The president also proposed that the naval force of either nation should be authorized to capture violators of the agreement flying either flag. In his reply Salisbury waives his point relating to Russia, accepts the last proposition given above, and then suggests that the United States specifically authorize the residence of a British consul on the islands "to see that the limit of 7,500 seals is not exceeded by the United States." He also says that the agreement on terms of arbitration at the same time as the modus vivendi is a matter of the greatest importance, and that another "modus" next year will be out of the question.

Must Trust Uncle Sam's Honor.

In reply the president says he is "sure that Lord Salisbury will not question the absolute good faith of this government in observing its stipulation to limit the catch to 7,500. The government could not, of course, consent to any arrangement that implied such a doubt, or involved any foreign supervision on the islands." The president adds that the United States will put no obstacle in the way of Great Britain sending suitable persons to make observations on the islands in order to obtain such information as to seal life as is necessary to the presentation of her case, and in the proposition for a modus vivendi presented with this communication a provision is inserted with that object in view.

Beginning to Flop Together.

Sir Julian Pauncefote answers this with practically the same proposition, adding a clause providing for a commission of four experts, two for each government, and a chairman nominated by the arbitrators or by the commissioners, to examine and report on the question what agreements, if any, to preserve the fur seal are necessary between the United States, Great Britain, and Russia; also providing that the United States will join England in requesting Russia to come into this modus vivendi. He argues that it is important that the joint commission shall be appointed at once. The proposal to make a request of Russia to join the modus vivendi was rejected, but the proposition in regard to a joint commission was accepted.

Close of the Correspondence.

The end of the whole thing was reached June 13, when Sir Julian wrote that he had authority to sign the agreement as it is summarized in the second paragraph of this dispatch, but with the condition that the joint commission be appointed without delay. This was accepted by the president and Acting Secretary Wharton appointed yesterday as the day for signing the agreement. It was duly signed yesterday, the president's proclamation issued, and here endeth the first completed chapter of the Behring sea controversy.

The Government Fair Building.

WASHINGTON CITY, June 16.—The board of management of government exhibits for the World's fair has accepted the bids of P. B. Herr, of Chicago, for the foundation of the naval exhibit building at $7,900, and of Charles W. Gindele, of Chicago, for the superstructure at $57,609.

The Latest Price of Silver.

WASHINGTON CITY, June 16.—The treasury department yesterday purchased 329,000 ounces of silver at 98.1 to 98.3 cents per ounce.

THEY OUGHT NEVER TO BE MISSED.

The Cranks Who Join Such a Grewsome Club as This.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., June 16.—The discovery that Landlord E. F. Schmidt, of Birmingham, who took his life last week, was a member of the famous Bridgeport Suicide club has again brought that grewsome organization into prominence. The history of the club dates back some six years. As originally organized its membership was limited to six, but soon as the existence of the club was known the members were besieged with applications for membership and were obliged to let others in until the original six grew to eighteen.

They Get There All the Same.

It is not known whether lots are drawn to decide who is to commit suicide or whether the members are sworn at initiation to destroy themselves within a stated time. The latter theory seems the most probable from the fact that the mortuary record of the club has always been kept up with fearful regularity, as is attested by the following list of suicides of the members: August Heisterhagen, found dead in a cellar with a bullet hole in his head; Joseph Kopp, shot himself in bed at Water and Bank streets; George Leavenworth was found dead in Case's hotel from laudanum, self administered.

Seven Other Rash Men.

William Meckel cut his throat with a razor in his room on Bank street; John Klenzy shot himself through the heart with a rifle in the cellar of his saloon on Main street; John Schneider threw himself in front of a locomotive on South avenue; John Mattern hanged himself in his shop on Bank street; Wendell Baum cut his throat with a jackknife while in New York; W. H. Maby shot himself with a revolver; E. F. Schmidt blew his brains out with a shotgun at his hotel in Birmingham.

FATHER MOLLINGER'S BLESSING.

The Alleged Cure of a Boy Who Had Not Walked for Years.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 16.—The little church of the Most Holy name, on Mount Troy, continues to be the center of attraction for hundreds of afflicted humanity. About 500 invalids applied to Father Mollinger for his blessing yesterday morning and all were accommodated. In no instance, however, was a prescription for medicines given out. Martin Lavin, of Somerset, Niagara county, N. Y., a 15-year-old boy who had never walked since childhood, was carried into the presence of Father Mollinger.

Why Not Watch This Case?

After anointing and blessing the young man the priest commanded him to walk, which to his great delight and the amazement of the vast audience, he did, walking from the altar rail to the rear of the church unassisted. It is said that the priest-physician will remain on Troy hill until the latter part of the week. Father Mollinger makes no charge for his services in blessing the afflicted. The voluntary contributions, however, that are left in the basket at the side of the altar are enormous.

Examiner Drew and Comptroller Lacey.

PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—Mr. Drew was seen Sunday night in regard to the comptroller's statement that his report did not show the true condition of the Keystone National bank, and said that he was confident that the reports showed the condition as accurately as could be ascertained by him at the time made. Regarding the statement that he had been directed to suspend examinations for the present, Mr. Drew furnished a letter from Comptroller Lacey in which the only thing looking like suspension is a suggestion that before resuming examinations, after he (Drew) is through with the Keystone bank matters, the comptroller would like to have a conference with him.

An Old Man Tortured by Robbers.

CONNEAUTVILLE, Pa., June 16.—Robbers broke into the house of Eli Brooks, who is over 70 years old, early Saturday morning and tortured the old man in a frightful manner because he refused to give up his money. They built a fire and burned the the old man's feet. The terrible pain forced him to give the thieves over $40, which he declared was all he had. After further torturing him with fire the thieves left. Mr. Brooks was in a pitiable condition when found a few hours later.

Acquitted Ex-Manager Blood.

ABERDEEN, S. D., June 16.—The embezzlement case brought by the Western Union Telegraph company against ex-Manager Blood, of this city, has been decided, the jury returning a verdict of acquittal. The case hung fire for several years and was of considerable importance, as it was an alleged conspiracy that existed among the telegraph operators to defraud the company.

Suicide of a Professor.

WHEELING, W. Va., June 16.—Professor Jesse Richards, manager of the West Virginia shorthand school, suicide in a horrible manner yesterday. He fired two balls through his head and then, death not coming quick enough, he slashed his throat with a razor, nearly severing the head from the body. No cause for the terrible act is known.

Two Men Crushed in a Mine.

CUMBERLAND, Md., June 16.—Yesterday, while at work in the Hoffman mine, two miners, named Jacob Legeer, aged 50 years, and John Murray, were caught by a heavy fall of coal, which crushed Legeer to death, and fatally injured Murray. The former leaves a wife and five children. Murray was unmarried.

Two Men Struck by Lightning.

ELGIN, Ills., June 16.—During the heavy storm yesterday a number of men employed on a new building took refuge in a barn, which, soon after their entrance, was struck by lightning. One of the men, Theodore Schultz, was instantly killed, and another, John Bartels, received such injuries that he will probably die.

THE SWISS HORROR

Twice as Many Dead as First Reported.

THE CITY OF BASLE IN MOURNING.

Fifty-Seven Corpses Taken from the Wreck and the Wounded Numbered by Scores — Albert Edward and Lady Brooke—Report of a Divorce Suit—The Baccarat Case Comes Up in Parliament and Wales Admits Bad Judgment—Comment on the Affair—Foreign Notes.

BERNE, June 16.—The musical fete at Moenchenstein, which the unfortunate excursionists on the wrecked train on the Moenchenstein and Basle railway Sunday were on their way to attend, was abandoned as soon as news of the accident reached that place. Hundreds of the villagers hurried to assist in rescuing the victims. The bridge through which the train was precipitated was an iron skeleton structure, considered entirely safe. The collapse is ascribed to the train having left the rails, thereby throwing its entire weight on one side of the bridge. An investigation will be immediately ordered.

Fifty-Seven Bodies Recovered.

Up to the present hour fifty-seven bodies have been recovered from the wreck of the train. Forty persons were severely wounded and the total number of injured is estimated at over 100. It is also believed that the list of the killed, when fully known, will reach 120. Gangs of men are working with untiring energy to recover the bodies of the victims and to clear away the wreck. Basle has by this calamity been transformed into a veritable city of morning, as most of the victims of the appalling accident were among her leading citizens. Hardly a street but has its houses bearing the symbol of mourning.

Anxious People at the Stations.

The railway station platforms and the approaches to the hospitals are alike crowded with pale-faced men and weeping women, who crane forward to look upon the features of the dead or sorely wounded as they are conveyed on stretchers and in ambulances to home, hospital, or morgue. The uncertainty as to how many bodies may rest beneath the wreck adds to the strain and excitement of the time, and everywhere people are anxiously attempting to locate absent relatives and friends.

Looks Like a Battlefield.

The neighborhood of the collapsed bridge resembles in many features the after episode of a battle, the closing acts in some warlike struggle. Still more so was this the case during the whole of Sunday night, when the river banks were illuminated in a ghastly manner by huge fires built up of fir trees, the troops and firemen working unceasingly, dragging the river for the dead, nursing the wounded and keeping a cordon around the spots where it was not thought advisable to admit the crowds of people who had flocked about the broken bridge from every village in the canton, for the dreadful news spread in all quarters with the most astonishing rapidity.

A Ghastly Center of Interest.

Ghastly as the broken bridge and its environs were there was one corner of the dark picture which was the center of interest if only from the fact that it was the center of the horror. This spot was the improvised morgue on the river bank, where the dead bodies were taken and tenderly laid in rows by the soldiers. Close to this place of the dead were two huge fires of fir trees and the bivouac of infantry soldiers who furnished a guard from their number, who, with fixed bayonets, formed a square of sentinels around their dead, admitting within their lines only those who were actually in search of missing relatives.

THE TROUBLES OF A PRINCE.

Report That Wales Is Co-Respondent in a Divorce Suit—The Baccarat Case.

LONDON, June 15.—There was a rumor, which could not be confirmed, last night that Lord Brooke, son of the earl of Warwark, has filed a petition for divorce from his wife on the ground of adultery, the Prince of Wales being charged as co-respondent. It is a matter of common knowledge that both the prince and Lord and Lady Brooke maintain that their intimacy is platonic. But all gossip aside, the relations between Lord and Lady Brooke have been little more than formal for several months past. It is rumored that Lord Brooke has in his possession letters nearly as interesting as those in the Mordaunt case, written by the Prince of Wales, and which call for some clear definition of the line between platonic affection and the Seventh commandment.

The Baccarat Case in Parliament.

The baccarat case came up in Parliament yesterday, upon a question propounded by the Radicals, who were delighted to have a fling at Albert Edward. The government was prepared, however, and the Liberals were ready to support any reasonable explanation, and not a particle in sympathy with Radical attacks on the heir apparent. Secretary for War Stanhope replied to the question, which intimated a violation of the army regulations by the prince in agreeing to hush up the matter. He said: "The army regulations in question had undoubtedly never been specially brought to the notice of the Prince of Wales, but when they had been, and looking back at all the circumstances of the case, the Prince of Wales saw his error of judgment in not requiring Sir William Gordon Cumming to make an immediate report to his commanding officer.

Put Yourself in His Place.

"In his view I concur, but I should like to express my personal opinion that, had any one else suddenly heard that a friend who had greatly distinguished himself in the service had been accused of such an offense, he would certainly hesitate before at once adopting a course that would bring an immediate and irretrievable blight on his whole future." Continuing, Stanhope said that he was authorized by the Prince of Wales to say that he (the prince) now saw the error of judgment Lieut. Levett, another witness of the cheating, had written to the commanding officer expressing regret that he had not acted according to military regulations. The government, therefore, would take no further action in the matter.

Real Status of the Case.

The real status of the case is that when Gordon Cumming was charged with cheating at cards it was his duty to demand an investigation by the military authorities. He should not have waited for some one to "inform" on him. This is the position of The Daily News, and was the position taken by Stanhope in his remarks. If Cumming was innocent, it is certain that such action was best for him, and even if guilty it would leave him in no worse situation than a suit for slander.

There's Much Hysteria Abroad.

The statement made or hinted at by some hysterical journals that the succession of the Prince of Wales to the throne is endangered by the scandal may safely be classed as political nonsense. If the prince survives his royal mother his right to the throne is incontestible. No English statesman would dream of disputing it. No party, certainly none that was strong enough to have a position to put at hazard, would run the risk of raising a question fraught with such grave possibilities of disturbance socially and financially as well as politically. The Tranby Croft affair is too trivial and ephemeral an issue to count for anything in unsettling the royal succession. The Mordaunt divorce case was vastly more serious, yet within a twelve-month of that damaging scandal the prince had fully recovered his popularity.

Germany Responsible for Jew Baiting.

LONDON, June 16.—The German professors, Virchow and Mommsen, accuse German anti-Semitism of being responsible for the present Russian persecution of Jews. Odessa dispatches say that many Baptists and Stundists have been expelled from Caucasus and deprived of their children, whom the government intends to educate in the orthodox faith. Similar acts are reported to have been committed in other parts of the country.

The Illness of Herman Raster.

BERLIN, June 16.—Mrs Washington Hesing, the wife of the manager of The Chicago Staats Zeitung, is in the city. She said the last news about Herman Raster, the well known editor of The Staats Zeitung, indicated that he had not many more months to live. Mr. Raster is now taking the waters at Cudowa, Silesia. He is suffering from fatty degeneration of the heart.

Labouchere Protested in Vain.

LONDON, June 16.—In the house of commons yesterday Smith moved that for the remainder of the session government matters precede all others. He said that all would be dropped except the Irish land bill, the education, the factories, the public health, and the renewal of gold coinage bills. Labouchere protested, but the motion was adopted.

DEATH OF "FRITZ" EMMET.

The Well-Known Actor Has Made His Last Appearance.

NEW YORK, June 16.—"Fritz" Emmet, the actor, died at Cornwall at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, from pneumonia contracted a few days ago while bathing. Emmet returned from New York a week ago, after a two months' absence. As is his custom he went to a Turkish bath establishment and lived there until he went to his home at Cornwall on Thursday. Emmet was one of the best customers of Turkish bath establishments in the country, and he always lived in them when in New York. It is supposed that he left the bath house too soon, and contracted pneumonia.

Been Eight Months in Bad Health.

The last moments of the great comedian were peaceful and his death painless. His divorced wife was not with him and did not know of his illness until he had passed away. It was reported some time ago that Emmet was going to marry Maud White, his leading lady, but the rumor was denied. It is said, however, that Miss White is on her way to this city to join Emmet, he having left her in London. Emmet's health began to break about eight months ago, when he was stricken with nervous prostration. He has been almost constantly under the care of a physician since that time, and at the latter's directions closed his season in April and went abroad.

The Lincoln Monument Appropriation.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., June 16.—In order to do away with the charge for admission to the Lincoln monument a movement was started before the late legislature to have the state appropriate enough money to keep the monument in repair, pay the custodian's salary, etc. The trustees went before the committee and explained that the only funds they had to keep the monument in repair, etc., were derived from admissions, and that it cost about $2,500 a year to do the work. The house refused to vote more than $1,250, and now the trustees refuse to accept the appropriation, claiming that it is insufficient; consequently the usual admission fee will be charged.

An Ex-Legislator on Trial.

CHICAGO, June 16.—Solomon Van Praag, ex-legislator and a saloonkeeper, was on trial yesterday before Judge Blodgett for violation of the United States election laws in procuring false testimony in naturalization cases. John Callaghan swore that Van Praag got him to swear to a lie in two cases and John Murray confirmed Callaghan's testimony. The defense introduced witnesses contradicting part of what Callaghan said, and others swearing that his reputation was very bad.

Ought To Be Accommodated.

NEW YORK, June 16.—The jury in the case of Raimund Legrano, charged with the murder of Charles Mauro, April 20, 1891, yesterday returned a verdict of murder in the second degree. When Legrano was informed of the nature of the verdict he exclaimed: "It's a humbug; I don't want imprisonment for life. I want a death sentence."

A National Event

The holding of the World's Fair in a city scarcely fifty years old will be a remarkable event, but whether it will really benefit this nation as much as the discovery of the Restorative Nervine by Dr. Franklin Miles is doubtful. This is just what the American people need to cure their excessive nervousness, dyspepsia, headache, dizziness, sleeplessness, neuralgia, nervous debility, dullness, confusion of mind, etc. It acts like a charm. Trial bottles and fine book on "Nervous and Heart Diseases," with unequalled testimonials, free at Tillson & Hayden's. It is warranted to contain no opium, morphine or dangerous drugs. 1

He Yelled "Kemp's Balsam

I was threatened with pneumonia last winter and it broke it up. It helps the children out when their throats are sore, cures their coughs and tastes so good. The first dose helps you. So writes A. R. Arnold, engineer on the West Shore Ry., at Canajoharie, New York.

Remarkable Facts.

Heart disease is usually supposed to be incurable, but when properly treated a large proportion of cases can be cured. Thus Mrs. Elmira Hatch, of Elkhart, Ind., and Mrs. Mary L. Baker, of Ovid Mich., were cured after suffering 20 years. S. C. Limburger, at San Jose, Ill., says that Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, which cured the former "worked wonders for his wife." Levi Logan, of Buchanan, Mich., who had heart disease for 30 years, says two bottles made him "feel like a new man." Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is sold and guaranteed by Tillson & Hayden, Dixon, Ill. CRONIN'S SPIRIT.

Said to Revisit the Fateful Carlson Cottage.

GHOSTLY APPEARANCES REPORTED,

And Fearful Sounds Heard by the Neighbors—A Vision of the Murdered Physician—Belief of a Spiritualist and His Offer to Interview the Apparition—Failure of a Young Lady to Recognize the Alleged Spook.

CHICAGO, June 16.—Has the spirit of Dr. Cronin returned to haunt the scene of the terrible murder? That he has is firmly believed by some of the residents in the vicinity of the Carlson cottage. Strange sights and sounds, it is said, have aroused the neighbors to the highest pitch of excitement, and for several nights the lonely cottage has received almost as much attention as it did the day after the facts of the murder were brought out. Last night a number of persons gathered in the vicinity of the cottage. They claimed to have actually seen the spirit of the murdered doctor at the windows.

Mrs. Carlson's Bad Dream.

The first thing heard of the affair was last Thursday night, when Mrs. Carlson, who, with her husband, now lives in the cottage, was awakened by strange cries, moans and the pattering of feet. On the same night some person claimed to have seen a ghostly form, enveloped in a white shroud, appear at one of the windows in the front room, and after peering out into the street, give vent to moans and cries for help. The apparition was described as being the head and shoulders of a man. Down the face welled a crimson stream and the features were distorted with pain and anguish.

Saw an Indistinct Form.

It did not take long for the story to spread around the neighborhood, and a watch had been held for several nights by neighbors, curious, yet fearful, to see the strange and terrifying sights. For blocks around the residents have discussed the one subject: "Is Dr Cronin's ghost haunting the Carlson cottage?" Miss Jennie Silva, who lives at 1140 Lincoln avenue, had heard of the terrible scenes said to be enacted each night at midnight, and, accompanied by a friend, Miss Maggie Tafft, has been to the cottage. Miss Silva saw the strange, white, indistinct form through the windows.

A Spiritualist's Proposal.

Miss Tafft, who knew Dr Cronin, was taken to the cottage at night by her friend to see whether she could identify the form as that of the dead man. The specter was too indistinct, however. Joseph E. Specht, a florist who lives at 1,198 Lincoln avenue, is a spiritualist and an educated man. He is of the firm impression that Dr. Cronin has returned to earth, in the spirit form, to point out his murderers. "I am a spiritualist, and fully believe that the dead return to earth if they cannot rest," he said. "I am willing to pass a night in the cottage and find out what message the spirit desires to leave to his friends. I have no doubt that he has some important message to leave."

A Wierd Light Seen.

Mrs. Freiser, who lives at 1798 Ashland avenue, says she saw, while passing the cottage one night recently, a wierd phosphorescent light in one of the front windows, but, not being anxious to explore any mystery, she hurried home. Mr. Carlson would not deny that strange happenings had been going on. Mrs. Carlson volunteered some information as to what she had heard, but a quick look of admonition from her husband stopped her. The neighborhood is greatly excited over the alleged manifestations and the people gather in crowds at about midnight to see the wonderful things which are said to appear.

DECISION IN A LIBEL CASE.

The Suitor for Damages Puts His Character on Trial.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Vincent A. Witcher is suing a newspaper for libel, and the defendant's attorney had the plaintiff put on the stand. His attorney objected to a question relating to his career in the army, but Judge McAdam decided that it was proper. He said: "A person bringing a slander or libel suit in effect puts his character on trial. Character is what the man is. Reputation is what people think he is. In determining whether character has been injured the jury is entitled to know who the complainant is, where he belongs, and how much and what kind of character he has capable of injury, so that they may intelligently fix its pecuniary value and the extent of the injury. This is good common sense as well as law. When a person wants an injury repaired it is always competent to ascertain the reasonable value. Juries always consider this, and it is useless for courts to shut their eyes."

The Law, as Usual, Runs from the Mob.

TOPEKA, Kan., June 16.—Saturday night a mob gathered at Garden City to lynch the Mexican in jail for cutting a boy's throat last week. The sheriff, hearing of the plot, got a team and started with the prisoner to the nearest railway station. The mob gave chase and as the train gathered speed in leaving the station with the sheriff and the culprit on board the advance guard of the lynchers were distanced twenty feet from the rear car.

Gen. Chipman Rejected.

CHICAGO, June 16.—The board of control, representing the national commission of the World's fair, by a unanimous vote yesterday, rejected the nomination of Gen. N. P. Chipman, of California, as chief of the department of horticulture. The other nominations were confirmed. A joint meeting of the local directory and the board was held later and it is probable that William G. Forsyth, of California, will look after horticulture.

Tried to Kill His Wife.

ST. PETER, Minn., June 16.—August Vogt, at Ottawa, made a desperate attempt to kill his wife yesterday. He got up and got a hatchet and struck his wife twelve times, cutting her severely on the head head and shoulders. The children went for assistance, and while they were gone Vogt got a rope and hanged himself to a tree near the house. Jealousy was the cause. The woman may recover.

Bad Outlook for Iowa Coal Mines.

FORT DODGE, Ia., June 16.—The fuel question in northern Iowa is becoming a grave one. In addition to the big strikes, which have already made a coal famine imminent, it is now stated that the extensive coal fields in this section are rapidly playing out. It is being realized that the coal veins here were not based upon a genuine coal field, but were a collection of pockets. The mines at Carbon Junction, Holiday Creek, Coalville and Kalo have been abandoned and the villages that surrounded them are deserted.

Singing Comes High.

I do not propose to undertake the invidious task of giving details of individual salaries, but I may without breach of confidence state that seven of Mr. Harris' leading vocalists are to be paid a sum exceeding in the aggregate 20,000 golden sovereigns, and that the Covent Garden salary list for less than four calendar months amounts to nearly £40,000. In 1821, according to a published statement by Ebers, the manager, the pay list was £8,636, so that within seventy years salaries have increased nearly fivefold.

In 1869, when the company included Patti, Titiens, Lucca (who, however, after all, did not come to England), Nilsson, Di Murska, Scalchi, Vanzini, Sinico, Tamberlik, Mongini, Stanley, Naudin, Graziani, Foli and many others, Mr. Mapleson has stated that the salary list was only £22,000, so that in twenty-two years it has nearly doubled. To the fees of the chief artists must be added the pay of the band and conductors, who cost nearly £600 a week; of the chorus, carpenters, supers and attendants, the cost of new scenery, dresses, properties and appointments, rent and advertisements.

After the whole expenses are added up I doubt whether the curtain can be raised at the Royal Italian Opera much under £700 a night. Of this amount upward of one-half goes to the leading singers, and I very much fear barely one hundredth part is paid to the composer, who is still the Cinderella of the operatic family.—London Truth.

Quoting Her Father.

Digby Bell, the comic opera comedian, has a six-year-old daughter to whom he is particularly devoted. Lallah is a bright, pretty child, with dark, expressive eyes and an abundance of brown hair that falls in waves upon her shoulders.

One day Mr. Bell, who had promised to take the child to see Barnum's circus, started out with her. A sudden shower forced him to abandon the plan. The downcast looks of the little one were too much for the tender heart of the fun maker and he decided to take her to dinner at Delmonico's. After having had the supreme pleasure of ordering anything on the carte that she wanted, she heaved a great sigh and gazed at her papa with a questioning look. She had forgotten something.

"I knew what she wanted," says Mr. Bell, "but pretending not to notice the look, I said, 'Well, I suppose you have had all you want?'

"She felt that she had been treated so well that she did not know how to ask for what she wanted. But, mustering her resolve, she finally replied:

"'Papa, I've had a lovely time. But, as you say when you talk about the Giants playing ball, can't I—I bunch my hits in the last inning and have some ice cream?'—Chicago Post.

A Kind Word.

Twenty years ago a forlorn little mulatto boy sat apart, one summer day, in a school for negroes in Philadelphia. He was idle, mischievous and, as usual, in disgrace. A visitor came into the school, a woman, who, herself one of the "dark people," possessed culture and much wisdom and tact.

"What is this boy waiting for?" she asked.

"A whipping," dryly remarked his teacher.

She beckoned the child to her side, and held his hand while she heard the class recite. When they had finished she asked a few questions about him, and then said to him, smiling:

"You must take your whipping, for you deserve it, but never deserve another. We colored people need great men of our own race to help us—great doctors, great preachers, great scholars. Your teacher tells me that you are fond of arithmetic, and do well in it. Try to be a great civil engineer."

The boy became a man of influence and a help to his people. He said lately: "Those chance words put a soul into me. I really owe to them much of my success in life."—Youth's Companion.

Frogs' Legs and Frenchmen.

People are usually inclined to regard that toothsome viand known as frogs' legs as a dish peculiar to the French, and more than once unfriendly individuals have alluded to that country as a nation of frog eaters.

For this reason I was surprised the other day while dining at a modest little Parisian restaurant in the French quarter of this city to find that out of a party of four French people, two ladies and two gentlemen, there were two who had never tasted the succulent white meat peculiar to the hind legs of the gentle bullfrog. More than that, neither could be persuaded to taste the dish at all, although it was served a la poulette and cooked to perfection.—New York Herald.

A Slow but Sure Cure for Warts.

Castor oil, it is said, if regularly applied each day to a wart, will remove it without leaving a scar. The time it takes may try the patience of the user—from two to six weeks being required—but if faithfully used it will remove the most obstinate warts.—New York Journal.

Deafness Can't Be Cured

By local application, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucus lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucus surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that we can not cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

GEN. ROBERT SCHENK.

Robert Schenk was for many years an Ohio Congressman, then a Major-General during the war, and finally Minister to England. He was taken ill. The best physicians in England and on the Continent said he had Bright's disease of the kidneys and gave him at most but a few weeks to live. Gen. Schenck returned to America and went upon a small fram in Vermont. Here he lived entirely upon skim milk not eating a particle of starch. The result was that he prolonged his life twenty years living to the ripe age of 84, and he has only just died, full of years and honors. This shows that kidney tronble can be cured. In its earlier stages it should be met by Ried,s German Cough and Kidney Cure. In almost every case no futher treatment is necessary and the patient will recover without resorting to a special diet. It contains no poision. For sale by all druggists, 25 and 50 cents a bottle.

—In the U. S. District court there was imposed a fine of one thousand dollars on Henry Metz, a horse dealer at Polo, for violation of the law prohibiting the importation of alien labor into this country under contract. Three men were hired to take charge of horses he purchased in France and he contracted with them for one year and that was the offence.

—Kate Osborne and Louie Almond were out together for a drive on Saturday and it is reported visited a neighboring town and were married. This same couple procured a marriage license in this city some two years ago and Louie threatened to whip a TELEGRAPH reporter for mentioning the fact at the time so we hesitate to give this occasion an extended notice.

—We regret, as will many of our readers, to hear of the death of Mrs. S. Reigle, who resided south-west of Franklin. Mr. and Mrs. Reigle left for the east a few days since, going, we believe on the Hagerstown excursion, both apparently in good health and anticipating a pleasant trip, but now comes a dispatch from the husband that his wife died suddenly and he is on his way home with the remains.

—The financial committe for the Company G, Fourth of July celebration, are about to collect money already subscribed by the citizens and all should make it an easy matter for the young men by having the amount on hand. Those who have not already subscribed will be given an opportunity to do so, as the boys will have to raise a few more dollars to carry out the excellent program being prepered.

—James H. Clark, at Maple Park, had an experience last night with lightning. He was awakened by a feeling that something had been struck. He went out of the house, walked around the building and looked at the barns, but saw no sign of damage. This morning a hole was found in the ceiling of the sitting room down stairs in the south-east corner of building and a fine crayon picture, framed in gilt with a deep mat, that hung a few feet away attracted the current. The gilt was slightly flecked from the frame and the mat is now beautifully decorated with a delicate border, done by a peculiar electro-galvanic process beyond the skill of mortal man. The ornament is much improved in value and Mr. Clark says that he would not take fifty dollars for the picture to-day. Twenty feet away from this place, in an adjoining dining room, the plaster is punctured, but otherwise no mark is found of egress or exit of the lightning. The outer walls and roof have been thoroughly examined.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES.

The South Side High School—Bouquets, White Swiss, Pekay, and Sweet Girl Graduates.

Though the evening was warm yet the Opera House was well filled last evening with citizens desiring to witness the graduating exercises of the South side High school. The stage was tastefully decorated with flowers and the hall was beautifully festooned with the class color, purple, on a background of white; and the entire room manifested a most charming glow such as is only given by the sunshine of purity and the sweetness of roses and lilies.

The program as heretofore announced in THE TELEGRAPH was well carried to a finish, and so well did they all sustain their parts that we will not attempt any very special mention.

First came prayer by the Rev. S. Earngey followed by music and the following exercises:

Oration, "He that Would Search for Pearls Must Dive Low," Florence Mulkins; followed by Barclay Bowles, on "Credit." Song, "Oh, Oh, Hear the Wild Winds Blow," J. P. Garner; Essay, "The World Behind the Scenes." Emma Judd; Oration, "Rewards of Labor," Fred Hammarstrom; Piano Solo, Mrs. W. F. Strong; Oration, "American Citizenship," John Null; Oration, "Dawn," Besse Pitcher; Song, Miss Carrie Smith; Oration, "Unity in Diversity," Will Gruver; Oration, "The Age of Hurry," Clara Trowbridge; Song, "Out on the Deep," J. P. Garner; Benediction, Rev. H. C. Granger.

Music was furnished, and it was charming, by the school music class of '91, under the leadership of Prof. Ferdnand Heft, with the following students: Valie Heft, Nan Hunt, Horton Godfrey, Alice Heft, Lulu Hunt, May Reuf, Theo. Klossowoski, Frank Klossowoski and Emma Hegert; Miss Hattie Stroup, pianist; J. P. Garner, of DeKalb, song.

Professor W. H Williamson did not follow any particular rules in his make up of the entertainment, but gave us some new features last evening, for which he and his assistant teachers deserve especial credit, so well was it planned. We may say that to Misses Maud Bryant and Lillian Deming, of the High School, and indeed to all the teachers down through all the grades, are we indebted for such an intelligent class of pupils as that which graduated last evening.

The essays were short and good and the music worthy of more particular mention than we can now give it. There were eight graduates, four boys and four girls: C. Fred Hammarstrom, Will H. C. Gruver, Florence M. Mulkins, Bessie E. Pitcher, Emma M Judd, Clara M. Trowbridg, John W Null and DeC. Barclay Bowles.

Prof. Williams presented the diplomas with very neat and appropriate address to each graduate, and for this particular feature he is much complimented. He gave to each scholar a motto, token from the cardinal virtues, to be remembered through life. To John Null, he gave Prudence; Barclay Bowles, Fortitude; Fred Hammarstrom, Temperance; Will Gruver, Justice.

To each of the young ladies he presented one of the Graces; to Miss Florence Mulkins, Fidelity; its color blue; its jewel, the sapphire, and its flowers the the violet and harebell. Miss Besse Pitcher, Constancy; its color yellow; its jewel, the topaz and its flower the yellow pansy. Miss Emma Judd, Purity; its color white; its jewel the onyx, and its flowers the white rose and lily. Miss Clara Trowbridge, Fervency; its color crimson; its jewel, the ruby and its flowers, the red rose.

The presentation of each virtue was accompanied with appropriate poetic quotations, and ended with the gift of a bouquet of the flowers named.

To the President of the Class, Mr. John Null, was presented a bunch of fern spray and acacia, as emblems of Hope and Immortality.

The pansie had been selected as the class flower. The idea is a good one whether or not it was taken from Shakespear: "There's rosemary, that's for remembrance; and there's pansies, that's for thoughts."

One of the pleasing features of the evening was the neat appearance of the little stage assistants, Johnnie Dodge, Charlie Brown, Louis Pitcher and Ray Mittenbuhler, all dressed in Lord Fontleroy costumes; and the white robed faries, Lena Stevens, Nellie Gantz, Edwinie Smith and Ina Hegert. These little folks acted well their part and were the observed of all observers.

***

The Class of '91 express their appreciation of the efforts of their friends to render the evening of their commencement exercises successful and pleasant. Particularly do they thank Mrs. Deming, Miss Bryant and Prof. W. H Williamson for their untiring supervision and labor; Mrs. Dr. Hunt for rugs, piano lamp, etc.; I. B. Countryman for cloth for drapery; Brown Bros. for rugs, table drapery, etc; Josiah Buffet for evergreens; Mr. Mittenbuhler for use of Concert Grand piano; their schoolmates Misses Bertha Meyers, Ada McKenney, Eva McKenney, Emma Mc Callister, Eva Cook, Della Randolph, Minnie Cahill, Eva Franklin and Edna Carpenter for assistance in stage decoration and the procuring of flowers; Lester Street, Fred Dana, John Crabtree for zealous work and teams, and Horton Godfrey, Ole Johnson, Judd Potter and Theodore Klossowski for valuable assistance. We shall also remember with pleasure the delightful music with which Prof. Ferdinand Heft and his youthful orchestra of our school boys and school girls enhanced the interest of the exercises, together with the invaluable service of Miss Hattie Stroup at the piano. We greatful remember Mrs. W. F. Strong in her fine rendition of "Alice." We would not forget the Rev. S. Earngey and Rev. H C Granger. To the school Board we return thanks for their hearty cooperation with our superintendent.

—We have the pleasure of saying that the reported marriage of Mrs. Higgins west of this city and a young Hanes is premature.—Amboy News.

We don't see that there is anything pleasing in that correction.

—One of the interesting features of the Columbia World's Fair Exposition exhibit which will be made by the Interior Department of the Government, will be that relating to the American Indians. One of the officials of that Department, in speaking of the matter, said: We will have Sioux and Pueblos on the ground in their peculiar wigwams, making all the articles of merchandise that they now make. The Zunis, who are classed with the Pueblos, will make blankets, stone bottles and a peculiar kind of pottery, while the Navajoes will weave blankets so firm that they will hold water. The peculiar huts of the Pueblos, which are entered from the roof, will also be shown.

—When we remember that at the time Lincoln was elected President in all the States south of the Ohio river it was a criminal offence, punishable with fine and imprisonment, with a fair chance of being lynched, to teach a colored man, woman or child to read, we must believe that the world is becoming better. THE TELEGRAPH is reminded of this fact by the statement that there is an old negro in Talbot county, Georgia, who learned to spell in a curious way in slavery times. His owner lived in a sparsely settled neighborhood, and he being a small boy was sent along to accompany the children to school. The teacher would not allow him to go into the school-room when the pupils were reciting. This aroused his curiosity, and he would stealthily approach the door and repeat after the spelling class until he could spell every word in Webster's blue-back spelling-book before he knew the alphabet. He now reads and spells very well.

—William P. White, after a painful illness, died at his home in South Dixon, Friday, June 12th, and was burried in Oakwood Cemetery Sunday afternoon. He was born in Easton, Northampton Co., Pa., December 4, 1831; came first to Dixon in 1860; after remaining a few years he returned to Pennsylvania, where February 13, 1862, he was united in marriage with Miss Jane E. McMurtrie, of Milton, Pa., coming west the same year to St. Louis; living there two years, again came to Dixon in 1865; after making the city his home a few years he moved with his family to his country home where he resided at the time of his death. He was the father of four children, Ella, who at the age of nineteen, preceded him to the better land in 1882, Wm. H., Anna M. and Carrie E., who with his wife survive him, and were with him to care for him during his sickness. He was a quiet unassuming man, deep thinker, fond of reading, well informed and interested in the welfare of his country; a kind and loving husband, an indulgent father, a faithful friend and neighbor; he died as he had lived, a steadfast christian. His last words were "I want to be at rest with my Savior." The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Earngey, pastor of the M. E Church, at the residence.
